The Newcastle Courant 14 Mar 1835

At a general meeting of the inhabitants of the Parochial Chapelry of St. John's held in the Vestry of the Church, on the evening of March 3rd, 1835 (James Edgcome, Esq., in the chair) It was unanimously resolved That, as a Mark of respect due to the Memory and ministerial character of the late Rev. James Taylor, seven years evening lecturer, and the late incumbent of the Parish of St John's, a plain and neat marble tablet be erected to his Memory in St John's Church, by voluntary contributions; and that subscriptions for the same be received by William Chapman, Esq., James Edgcome, Esq., and Mr Charles Milner.... W. C. Walters Esq., £1 1s; Mr George Walters, 5s.

Notes on the Sign or Sacrament of Holy Baptism by William Clayton Walters, M.A., late Fellow of Jesus College, Cambridge and Barrister at Law

Published 1838. To Edward Chapman Walters, my first-born, I dedicate this: Because to him I am indebted, under God, for the motive for pursuing the very interesting inquiry contained in the following pages; and in humble trust that this slight token of the anxious care which a gracious God hath put into my heart for the sanctification of the soul of his own precious Gift, even from the first moment of his existence, may in after life, when I am gathered to my fathers, contribute to interest him in the blessings of the Everlasting Covenant.

The Times 24 Dec 1935 Death of Mr E. C. Clayton: Hunting and the Turf

Mr E. C. Clayton, "Uncle" as he was known wherever there was racing or hunting, died on Sunday at Cottesmore Grange, Oakham, Rutland, at the age of 98. He had been a frequent contributor to sporting papers and magazines on current sporting matters. Edward Chapman Clayton was born on October 25, 1837, and was the eldest son of the late Mr Clayton Clayton, D.L., of Bradford Abbas, Dorset. He was educated at Radley and at Harrow (H.B.). From school he went up to University College, Oxford, where he graduated in 1860. He was a typical country gentleman of the old school, and devoted his time to his estates, to hunting, and to other country pursuits, and to racing. He rode to hounds for 80 years. Soon after he came down from Oxford he began racing, and it was as long ago as 1867, the year Hermit won the Derby for Mr Chaplin, that Mr Clayton won his first important race, the Cambridgeshire, with Lozenge. Lozenge ran a dead-heat with Wolsey, and Mr Clayton refused to divide the stakes and insisted that the dead-heat should be run off. Lozenge beat Wolsey in the second race. Clayton was a keen amateur rider and steered many good winners at the old-fashioned Croxton Park meetings. The finest steeplechaser he ever owned was Zoedone, who carried his colours into third place behind Seaman and Cyrus in the Grand National of 1882. It was a stroke of bad luck for him that he sold Zoedone, for £1,000 to Count Kinsky, for, in the next year, the mare carried her owner to victory in the great Aintree steeplechase. Perhaps Clayton will be best remembered by the older generation of present-day race-goers for his management of the horses of the second Lord Penrhyn when they were trained at Exton Park, Rutland. To the end his heart was always with horses and hunting, and although confined to his room he loved to watch the Cottesmore Hunt pass his window. It became a tradition for the hounds to be taken up the long drive to Cottesmore Grange so that he could see them before the day's sport began. He was a member of the Jockey Club, of which he was a steward, and the club named a race after him at Newmarket. He never missed a meeting at Newmarket from 1862 until the middle of the War years. At the Grange his famous memories were perpetuated in pictures. One of which he was very proud hung in the hall and showed him in King Edward's company at Doncaster. He had, of course, a picture of Lozenge. In addition to his many pictures there were in the house his trophies, which included whips, crops, and old sticks. Mr Clayton married first, in 1860, Charlotte Diana, daughter of the late Mr Thomas Tyrwhitt Drake, of Shardeloes, Amersham. She died in 1916. In 1920 he married, secondly, Rosia, daughter of Colonel Anstruther Thomson, of Charleton, Fife, and widow of Colonel Burn, 18th Hussars.
