Berwickshire News and General Advertiser 30 Apr 1889 A Late Curate of Berwick

The Rev Gildart Jackson, the much-respected incumbent of St James' Episcopal Church, Leith, was, says a Leith paper, born at Hull, in Yorkshire, in the year 1837. He was educated at Kingston College, Hull, and subsequently he pursued his studies with great success at King's College School, London. Afterwards, he entered St John's College, Cambridge. In 1860 he graduated B.A., with mathematical honours, and in 1863 he received the decree of M.A. Any person who is slightly conversant with the severity and thoroughness of the mathematical examinations for a decree at the University of Cambridge will know that the circumstance that Mr Jackson graduated there with mathematical honours clearly proves that he is possessed of superior abilities, and that he had been a diligent student. In 1861 Canon Jackson was ordained to the curacy of Berwick-on-Tweed, and he remained there, first as junior, and afterwards as senior curate, from 1861 to 1865. He was appointed to St James' Leith in 1865, and instituted to the charge by the Coadjutor-Bishop of Edinburgh, in January 1866. The charge includes the chaplaincy of the Church of England troops at Piershill Barracks and Leith Fort, numbering with wives and children usually about from 500 to 600. There is a special service at Piershill every Sunday morning at 9.45, but the artillery from the Fort attend the service at S. James'. Mr Jackson was appointed by the late Bishop Cotterell, Edinburgh, in 1879. Under the ministrations of Canon Jackson, the congregation at St James' has been very prosperous, has much increased, and is now in a highly-flourishing condition. Besides the incumbent, there is a curate, the Rev J. Shirren, M.A. There is also a lay reader who visits regularly the families put under his charge, reporting on their spiritual and temporal condition. He also holds weekly cottage lectures. Twelve highly-respectable laymen, along with the incumbent, who is chairman, constitute the vestry, and we have learned that the harmony which prevails in that body is truly admirable, and that the utmost good feeling subsists between them and their excellent chairman. During 1888 the number of coins received at offertories in Mr Jackson's church were as under:- Farthings (130), Halfpennies (8,250), Pennies (10,485), Threepences (2,320), Sixpences (1,574), Shillings (1,049), Florins (264), Half-crowns (251), Half-sovereigns (44), Sovereigns (61).

Yorkshire Post and Leeds Intelligencer 04 Jan 1929 Mrs Baldwin's New Secretary
Northallerton people will be interested to learn that Mrs Baldwin has appointed as her new secretary Miss Gildart Jackson, the eldest daughter of Mr William Gildart Jackson, who, besides being a prospective Liberal candidate, was head master of a boys' private school, known as The Mount, Northallerton. He married the eldest daughter of Mr William Fowle, who until a few years ago, was clerk to Northallerton's principal public authorities. A staunch Conservative all his life, Mr Fowle used to be an election agent to the Conservative party. Miss Jackson is not new to secretaryships, for she has been private secretary to the Duke of Atholl, Lady Astor, Viscount Cecil, and she was on the secretariat of the League of Nations.
